Executive Program in Strategic Agility

Learn to rethink your organization and actively align its core capabilities with the external environment. Plus build commitment from your team to execute innovative strategies for growth.

SEEC Moments of Insight include:

- How to satisfy the functional imperatives of the organization without having to adhere to the traditional structure.
- Integrating and balancing analytical thinking (problem/solution analysis) with intuitive thinking (knowing without reason).
- Creating master narratives to introduce people to an idea for change, move them through refining it, and guide them in implementing it.

Our Participants Say it Best:

“A unique course! I’m glad I chose it, as it is very relevant to regularly keep an organization aligned as it regularly experience changes.”

W. Morella, Human Resource Director
Mead Johnson Nutrition Canada

“I will never look at organizations the same way again. This course will allow me to navigate successfully as I go up through any organization.”

M. Potter, Director of Access to Information Public Works and Government Services Canada

“It’s a great course that should be added as an executive requirement in each individual’s C.V. It’s an overwhelming agile experience that brought all the new concepts of management of our century into a cluster of knowledge well delivered by our facilitator.”

H. Ahmad, Commercial Director

Executive Program in Strategic Agility

Why do some organizations seem to thrive in today's constantly changing digital environment?

Leaders of strategically agile organizations actively connect what is happening in the external environment to the core capabilities of their organization. Plus strategically agile leaders build willingness and commitment from staff to engage the future in innovative and sustainable ways.

This program will teach you how to embrace agility, think strategically, and lead an organization you don't always understand in a world of complex problems often lacking right or wrong answers. You'll master techniques to radically rethink organizational structure and successfully lead the implementation of effective alternatives.

You'll also learn to integrate intuitive thinking in order to see beyond organizational approaches that may have worked in the past, but are recipes for extinction in the future. It will allow you to generate new and innovative ways to conduct business and operations in today's environment. And it will prepare you and your organization for a truly sustainable future.

Who Should Attend

This program is designed for business, government and non-profit executives who are responsible for business planning and organizational strategy. Leaders who want to expand their understanding of their organization, explore alternative structures, and develop their strategic agility, including:

- Directors
- Presidents and Vice-Presidents
- Division and General Managers
- Strategic Planning & Business Development Managers
- National, Regional and International Managers

What You Will Learn

The Executive Program In Strategic Agility is an opportunity to change the way you think about your organization and the role you play in it, including:

1. Basic elements of organization structure, strategy and design
2. Fundamentals of value and your value proposition
3. Structuring new business models
4. Leveraging virtual/networked organizations for sustained success
5. Learning to lead strategic agility so that others want to follow
6. Designing organizations for a wiki-world dominated by “netgener”s and social media
7. Actively overcoming the “curses” of success, such as tunnel vision, the tyranny of the “core business”, strategic myopia, and resource imprisonment

You'll also learn how to:

8. Balance analytical and intuitive thinking.
9. Harness strategic conversations in order to generate solutions
10. Implement new ideas successfully across your organization.

The result will be an organization positioned to consistently excel in the exigencies of the 21st Century.

What Participants Say:

“Rhona delivered outstanding content in an entertaining and engaging way... she has changed the course of our business.”

S. Ouimet, Director, Corporate Affairs, Hoffmann-La Roche

Structure your organization to excel with innovative solutions.
Program Content

Module 1: Strategic Thinking
In order to be agile, organizational leaders need to be able to carry on Strategic Conversations. These are conversations that integrate multiple perspectives in order to arrive at a new insight – an “aha”. Learn to conduct Strategic Conversations to harness the collective intelligence of your organization and build the capacity for people to engage in meaningful contribution. In this module, you’ll challenge yourself to explore through questions rather than answers.

Learning Outcomes:
- Develop your ability to explore organizational paradox using multiple frames
- Develop your ability to engage in Strategic Conversation
- Enhance your ability to engage in complex problem-solving through multiple paradigms

Topics include:
- Strategic Conversations – exploring paradox and integrative thinking
- Brainstorming and Using Multiple Frames – practicing tools and techniques for “seeing” beyond the surface
- Exploring organization design paradigms – moving beyond bricks and mortar to examine Chaos Theory, String Theory, Starfish, Spiders and Tribes
- Challenging the Sacred Cows – Planned Abandonment, virtual organizations, jobless organizations

Module 2: Strategic Organization Design
Strategic Agility recognizes that the greatest source of sustainable competitive advantage comes from the innovative ways people contribute to organizations, and the ways in which leaders help people achieve something of significance. Building on the first module, and integrating “strategy” and organization design, this module will examine the impact of strategic purpose, and strategic value proposals.

Learning Outcomes:
- Learn to “read” the pillars of an organization’s design.
- Examine your ideas of “how things should be,” challenge yourself to question what is working, and why
- Explore some of the strategic lenses of an organization, and keys to an organization’s sustainability
- Design for sustainability / ability and paradox / complexity
- Ability to articulate a Business Model and Value Proposition

Topics include:
- Strategic organization design – basic footings of an organization
- Social, environmental, and technical origins of organizations
- Basic structural elements – division of labour, differentiation, integration, etc.
- Strategy-structure relationship – purposeful design
- What is the “Business Model”? What is “Value” and the “Value Proposition”?
- How do we design for innovation? What role should social media play in organizational activity?
- Blue Ocean? White Space? Wiki? Disruptive Technologies – fads or design imperatives?

Module 3: Leading the Agile Organization
The final module starts from the premise that the purpose of an organization is to do something important. How do you as a leader get people to want and be able to do something important? Agility starts with you. Learn how to lead in this brave new world by developing a skill set for moving from talking about vision to having an engaged and motivated workplace that “gets it done”.

Learning Outcomes:
- Develop your ability to differentiate between leadership and management
- Engage in Appreciative Leadership
- Articulate your personal brand and leadership vision

Topics include:
- What is the social contract between leaders and followers?
- What differentiates leaders from executives?
- What do you want to be known for as a leader?
- How will you build your team?
